Data has always been the engine room of our business, and as such is a continually transformative component of our operation. Working with Fusion Data is a truly exciting prospect and I'm in no doubt that it will provide further flexibility, versatility to us and become an integral part of our ongoing strategy.

Dr. Tinkle Jain, CEO for Nautilus Designs, adds: "We have partnered with FusionPlus to to offer optimised content across our entire portfolio, not just the products listed by wholesalers. Prior to this collaboration we have always been limited with regards to showcasing our entire product range across our various divisions and presenting the depth of our offering to customers. Therefore, this seemed like an inevitable next step towards growth. This collaboration would provide a mutually beneficial relationship to our customers as an increased visibility of our portfolio often converts to increase in sales for all stakeholders involved"
